Detailed Overview

Mcleodganj, also called Little Lhasa, is a suburb of Dharamshala in Himachal Pradesh. It’s a picturesque town blending Tibetan culture with British influence. Though small in size, it holds global significance as the residence of Buddhist spiritual leader Dalai Lama. The Mcleodganj Triund trek is a top choice for adventure lovers and trekkers, with the town perched beautifully above Dharamshala, surrounded by majestic mountains, rich greenery, and scenic landscapes. The Triund trek is among the most popular Himalayan journeys, perfect for groups of friends and ideal for first-time trekkers. It offers breathtaking views of the Kangra valley and snow-clad Dhauladhar ranges, making it a truly scenic experience. The trek is short yet steep and can easily be completed over a weekend. The trail winds through forests home to various colorful songbirds, delighting birdwatchers. With its easy access from Mcleodganj or Dharamshala and relatively simple route, Triund sees heavy footfall—especially on weekends or holidays—making it harder to enjoy its peaceful charm. Weekdays are better for experiencing its true beauty.
